Livingston County Unveils Updated County Website

GENESEO, N.Y., Aug. 11, 2022 — Livingston County is pleased to announce the launch of its newly updated website.

The website (<https://www.livingstoncounty.us/>) recently underwent a seven month re-design process by CivicPlus, a government website provider. The site now has easier access to the most used pages and services, as well as a cleaner, simpler layout for residents to navigate. With the new website, Livingston County will be able to increase its community engagement and enhance the communication between residents and their local government, said County Administrator Ian M. Coyle.

“We’re always looking at ways to make County government more accessible to our residents,” he said. “The updates to our site continue that tradition, putting front and center access to our live streamed Board of Supervisor meetings, information on budgets, meeting agendas and minutes, contact information for both elected and administration officials, public records, contract info, and more.”

Looking forward, Coyle says that the County’s new website will be a tool that will continue to grow and evolve to meet the needs of the community.

“In the ever-changing world of online technology, Livingston County will continue to utilize those tools that keep our residents informed and help us to shine a light on the workings of County government,” stated Coyle.
